

Little Hope of Changing CAB Ruling

By Gordon Brown

WASHINGTON (AP)—There are little prospects today that the Civil Aeronautics Board will change its mind and decide the airlines' local air service cases before it rules in a similar case involving Texas.

Arkansas Senators and representatives who have protested the board's ruling report they received no encouragement.

"It is the only thing to do in all a few more weeks," said Sen. Harris (D-Ark.) who added that he is hopeful of expediting the Texas case.

The board took its stand Feb. 26, denying the permit of Continental to operate in Oklahoma Central, its applying for re-approval of its permit, asked authority to extend its routes across Arkansas.

It proposed to extend operations from Texarkana, Tex., to eastern Oklahoma, to Little Rock from which it would send one route on to Memphis and another to New Orleans, and another to Kansas City.

Continental proposed for Hot Springs, Pine Bluff, Camden, Montgomery, Dorado and Stuttgart.

Two other lines — Texas Airways and Pioneer Air Lines, Inc. — intervened in the case and likewise asked routes across Arkansas.

Mental Examination of Head Continues

By Gordon Brown

MONROE (AP)—The State hospital will continue its examination of James W. Head, 47, for 30 additional days. Head was committed to the hospital for mental tests.

Dr. J. W. Head said the condition was applied to the hospital by Circuit Judge W. J. Waggoner Saturday when the hospital filed the order for the extension.

Head and his wife, Mrs. Linda Head, are charged with first degree murder in the slaying death of their 13-year-old son, James W. Head, Jr., last December.

used for Air Force crews. These include the New Mexico installation of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project (AFSWP).

They use, as do Air Force crews, precise duplicates of atomic bombs complete in all details except the actual nuclear fission charge.

Navy men participate in the joint task forces which conduct the experimental atomic explosions at the Nevada and Eniwetok Proving Grounds.

Monitors that components for the atomic bomb are carried aboard some of the larger carriers, published last year, have gone without official denial.

The Navy has at least one type at plane, operating from carriers, probably able to tote the same size A-bomb carried in the bays of the biggest land-based, long-range bombers.

The A-1 Savage is the heaviest of the operational carrier-based planes, with a gross weight of more than 55,000 pounds and powered by two piston engines and a jet. Its range is given as "more than 2,000 miles."

all weapons which could be packed into a bomber and loaded to a target.

Bomb experts at the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos and Sandia laboratories in New Mexico are now working out the engineering difficulties which spell the difference between an experimental machine and a true weapon.

Eventually it will be up to President Eisenhower to say how much of the nation's atomic resources shall be devoted from A-bomb to H-bomb production.

In the meantime, an official source said, both the military and the AEC are pushing ahead under the H-bomb directive issued by former President Truman on Jan. 31, 1950.

The first H-bomb to come out of the atomic arsenal are not expected to be either as bulky or as potent as the device detonated at Eniwetok. The test version turned out to be far more powerful than the experts had anticipated.

The energy yield of at least one of them is said to have been equal to that of around 3,000,000 tons of TNT. The wartime A-bomb was a 20,000-tonner. The biggest modern A-bombs run between 80,000 and 100,000 tons.

The first deliverable H-bombs are expected to be on the order of 1,000,000 tons in the equivalence. They will be capable of visiting destruction on an area of more than 100 square miles. Only the Air Force's heavy bombers will be able to deliver them.

dodged controversial issues, but he did say the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa would help the 8th Army in Korea only by actually invading the Chinese mainland, not just staging a nuisance raid.

He said he has no "solution" for the Korean stalemate.

He said his primary mission as 8th Army commander was to keep his men at a "fighting edge" and to continue to build up the South Korean army.

Taylor said the Oriental soldier of Korea and China is better suited mentally for the static war in Korea.

"He adapts himself to living in bunkers in this type of war," he said.

Rotation has a definite moral effect on American troops, Taylor said, but he admitted one of his biggest tasks is to "rectify the loss through rotation" of veteran troops.

Asked about the respective offensive capabilities of the U. N. and Communist armies, Taylor said his own 8th Army could launch a major offensive, but only "if the decision was taken by the proper authorities and all the necessary precautions were taken."

He did not elaborate, but he apparently felt the decision to attack the Communist "great wall" across Korea was for higher authority than his own.

3. Continue the pressure in Korea but be ready to "take the additional military steps" from time to time, where a military advantage might be gained.

Bradley did not say whether this might mean a U. N. offensive. The hope obviously would be the pressure might eventually lead the Red China and lead her to quit.

4. Take any one or any combination of military steps to get a decision in Korea "even while we realize it might eventually involve us in all-out war with Communist China." Broadening of the war in this manner, Bradley said, "might pin down the bulk of our military power on the continent of Asia, and could eventually develop into World War III."

Violent Death Claims 12 Persons

By The Associated Press

At least 12 persons died violently in Arkansas during the week ended last night. Five were highway fatalities.

Near Camden yesterday 15-year-old G. R. Linkus was killed when the car in which he was riding overturned.

A sheriff's posse found the body of a Negro woman identified as Mildred Bohman, about 34, late Saturday night. Sheriff Allen Nixon said Miss Robinson, 34, of Wabaska, signed a statement Saturday in which he said he shot the woman after an argument.

A Caraway farmer, Sam Hayden, 75, died at a Memphis hospital Saturday night from head injuries police said he received in a fight at Caraway.

Early Sunday a Camp Chaffee soldier, Cpl. James Hardin, 22, of Gadsden, Ala., died from a wound he received in a training exercise Friday.

Anderson Home
The home of Mrs. Roy Anderson has been newly decorated. The color scheme is carried out in colonial pink walls and woodwork and carpeting is cedar rose. The furniture is of mid-Victorian period. One outstanding feature to be seen is Mrs. Anderson's valuable collection of over 200 pieces of cutglass and a luncheon table set of cutglass.

Bates Home
The home of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Bates is of Cape Cod design with a newly added patio. This is modern, convenient and beautifully furnished. Visitors will see a fine pot plant display. Other features which visitors will see is a dining table set for a formal dinner and a patio arranged for a picnic. Mrs. Bates has one of the most outstanding yards in Hope and yearly has held the "yard-of-the-month" title.

Trumble Home
The tour will be climaxed with a visit to the home of Trumble sisters of Washington. Some 105 years ago this home was built by the grandfather of the present occupants. It is furnished throughout with handsome antiques and family heirlooms. The furniture was bought by the first John D. Trumble in New Orleans and shipped to Camden by boat and transported overland by ox team to Washington. The home has been remodeled and added to several times. The most recent addition is a spacious bedroom. It is often compared with the early homes of world-famous Natchez, Miss.

as a bad whistler, but his sounds don't carry as far.

But a few misty-eyed old sentimentalists are still left who enjoy the music of a really good whistler. Count me among them. Trains began to cease being more romantic than airplanes when they gave up their whistles for diesel horns. No boy raised in the Midwest can ever forget waking at night and hearing the mournful, adventurous whistle of a train racing across the darkened plains. It left a crying echo in every listening heart.

The whistle has played quite a role in mankind's long story. It was one of the first signal calls for help. For centuries it was a favorite form of greeting between lovers, a sweet summons to the beloved within that somebody she yearned for was outside her window and waiting.

It was only in later times it degenerated into the street corner wolf's insolent form of saying, "Hello, you kid." The whistle has been used by soldiers to warn each other of danger. Schoolboys always have delighted in turning it into a secret code, and probably always will. You can't separate a boy from his whistle. It is when he first learns to whistle that he knows for sure he will grow up and be a man. The whistle from the beginning of time has been a companion to the spirit of lonely men. When you are in trouble all alone, whistling gives you the courage you need. It stands for the voice of the friend who isn't there.

Senators to Quiz New Russian Envoy

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles (Chip) Bohlen, nominated to be ambassador to Russia, faces questioning by senators today on the international trading that led to World War II agreements involving the U. S., Britain and Russia.

Bohlen, who served as Russian language interpreter for President Roosevelt at Yalta and President Truman at Potsdam, was called before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for testimony on his nomination.

President Eisenhower has asked Congress to join him in denouncing Soviet perversion of these agreements and those reached at Tehran by which peoples have been enslaved behind the Iron Curtain.

Eisenhower has made it clear he doesn't want the agreements themselves repudiated — only the interpretation of the Kremlin has put on them. But Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) and others say some of the one-secret agreements are bad in themselves. They don't want Congress to approve them, even by implication.

Ferguson said he will ask Bohlen about the circumstances surrounding the agreements, particularly those made at Yalta.

"I want to know what the Russian demands were that led to these agreements," Ferguson said. Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, cautioned against calls by some Republicans for a tough, or talking resolution and by others for repudiation of the agreements. Going too far would risk Democratic support for the resolution, Sparkman said, adding:

"If we want to continue to fuss about Yalta and the agreements there, let's do it among ourselves. But let's not bring that into a resolution that is solely a propaganda weapon against Russia."

ment building. The government arrested 70 army officers — 65 retired and five on the active list — and accused them of inciting the demonstrators against the government.

Mossadegh also fired his army chief of staff, Gen. Mahmud Baharmast, accusing him of not acting promptly to check the anti-government rioters.

This continued today — an anti-Mossadegh mob raided the headquarters of the pro-Mossadegh Iran party and smashed furniture and windows — but generally today's demonstrations were in support of the premier.

Supporters of the aged Premier sent a round-robin letter to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi accusing retired Army officers of inciting the rioters who swarmed through the streets after an announcement that the Shah was planning to leave the country. At the demonstration, the ruler canceled his trip and said he had planned to go only for his health.

Many Drop Off of Welfare Rolls

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—State welfare director A. J. Moss said yesterday that at least 150 persons of the 1,000 who have removed their names from the welfare rolls did so because of the new law which opens the rolls to the public.

He said many of the others removed their names because of legislation that was pending in the assembly that would allow the state to place a lien on the property of welfare clients.

He said 72,000 persons were receiving welfare before the names were withdrawn. Moss said welfare recipients will be notified that if they accept March checks, their names will be placed on the welfare rolls.

Allies Thwart Red Attempt at Offensive

By STAN CARTER

SEOUL, AP—Allied infantrymen—battling at times inside their own bunkers—last night smashed a 750-man Chinese Communist assault against the main U. N. line on the Western Korean Front.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported the Reds were routed in a 3 1/2-hour close-quarter fight. American French and Thai infantrymen joined in the battle and were supported by British Commonwealth artillery.

The Chinese penetrated United Nations defenses at one point on a 1,500 yard front near Little Gibraltar Hill west of Yonchon and partly overran an American platoon, but the Americans stood their ground and kicked the Reds out. The Eighth Army reported nearly 200 Chinese were killed or wounded.

It was the heaviest Communist attack in more than a month.

Rain and wet snow fell on the battlefield today after the Reds retreated to their own lines. It turned the scene of Sunday night's battle into a veritable quagmire and made it difficult to communicate with the front line soldiers.

The overcast grounded U. N. warplanes.

Fog, Misty Rain Hits Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Sheets of fog and a misty rain hung over Arkansas early today, but the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said it was expected to lift early this afternoon.

The heavy covering left near zero visibility at Little Rock and caused several commercial airlines to by-pass scheduled landings at the capital city for other points.

The Weather Bureau said some areas in the southern corner of the state escaped the fog which enveloped the state shortly after midnight Sunday.

Little Rock, Ft. Smith, Jessieville, Ozark and Glenwood reported an inch or rain or more yesterday.

DOROTHY DIX Unappreciative Girls

Dear Miss Dix: If you can give me any help on my problem, I am sure you will also be giving assistance to many other mothers in a similar position. I have three children, a boy in the Navy and two girls at home, one 16 and the baby is 14. They are sweet girls. My husband has always been a drinker, but I've held my home together for the sake of the children. When they were old enough to be left by themselves, I went to work to buy them things they needed. Now my health has necessitated giving up outside work, and the girls can't have the things they have been used to. I have waited on them hand and foot, yet now they don't even ask me how I feel or offer to help with little jobs around the house. If I talk to them about staying out too late, they get mad and walk out of the house. Their father doesn't help me in bringing them up the right way. They all say I'm pretending to be ill.

A WORRIED MOTHER

Consequences of Spoiling Children
Answer: You're quite right in assuming that many other mothers share your difficulty, which is all brought on by a tragic form of self-delusion. You think that the continual sacrifices to satisfy the whims and wishes of your daughters prove you to be a good mother. Nothing could be further from the fact. Your real job was to bring them up with respect for you, and a sense of responsibility that would enable them to face the problems of maturity. Instead you have caused them to be dependent and selfish. According to your letter, the Navy has accomplished for your son what you failed to do, and he is now a fine understanding young man. What can accomplish the same miracle for your daughters? It isn't too late; but time is a-flying! The fact that you still refer to a 14-year old girl as a "baby" is one indication of the absurdity of the situation.

A father's cooperation certainly would be helpful, but since you can't count on it, you'll just have to face the facts that the reformation of your household must be a one person job. Begin right now, and absolutely refuse to take impertinence from your children. Insist on their taking on household chores which you are unable to do.

Neither Baron de Kalb nor Baron von Steuben, foreigners who served with distinction in the Revolutionary War, was a real baron. Both had assumed titles to further their professional careers.

Before he left the committee, however, Vishinsky promised he "would answer the challenge" by Lodge.

terday, Little Rock recorded 1.18 inches and Ft. Smith 1.10. Considerable cloudiness with showers or thunderstorms were forecast tonight and tomorrow.

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a young girl with a good job as a secretary, lots of nice friends, but I'm bored. I'd like a little glamour and excitement from life. The humdrum existence of working during the day and dating at night is making me miserable. DEPRESSED

Answer: With a well balanced business and social life, I don't see what more you could ask for to keep boredom away. Perhaps you lack some thought for others. You have probably slipped into a self-centered sort of life that has variety but little purpose. Girls with extra time on their hands can be very useful as hospital aids, and I suggest that you contact a couple of hospitals in your city — especially children's hospitals — and see if you can't find a use for the time you find lagging.

Dear Miss Dix: I have a problem altogether too complex for help. I am a widow in my late thirties with four lively children. I have become acquainted with a kind man of fine character who says he loves me and my family, and wants to marry me. I know this is a wonderful thing, but wonder if conditions will change after the honeymoon.

Answer: It would indeed be a wonderful thing if you could find a fine man willing to assume the responsibility of your family. It certainly isn't impossible. I know of many instances where such marriages have been successful. Only a person acquainted with you, your children and the man could really give an opinion as to the possible outcome of your romance. Talk the matter over with some person of experience, such as a clergyman or doctor, who knows all of you. Best of luck.

Only a person acquainted with you, your children and the man could really give an opinion as to the possible outcome of your romance. Talk the matter over with some person of experience, such as a clergyman or doctor, who knows all of you. Best of luck.

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a young girl with a good job as a secretary, lots of nice friends, but I'm bored. I'd like a little glamour and excitement from life. The humdrum existence of working during the day

These Days

E. Sokolsky

It used to be that the State Department was the most difficult agency of government to get into. Education, family, even private means were essential. Apparently, in the democracy of the New Deal, background ceased to be a requirement.

For instance, W. Bradley Connors has held one of the most important jobs in the State Department. He had been an adviser to General George Marshall in China; helped to write Marshall's speech on statements and reports. He has been in absolute control of policy as far as the international information service is concerned.

What background does he possess to equip him for such high office and such responsibility? He graduated from the Newark (N.J.) Academy and spent two years (1934 to 1936) at Yale. He then went to work for the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, a public utility, and not staying there long, he worked on the Newark Star-Ledger. From there he moved to the OWI and the State Department where his rise was swift.

While there is no evidence of training, he is one of the very top men in our Administration. This is the exact wording of his importances.

"The chairman (Senator McCarthy): Actually are you what would be known as the top man in so far as policy for the information program is concerned?"

"Mr. Connors: Yes, sir."

Now this country is engaged in a cold and hot war with Soviet Russia—cold in Europe, hot in Korea. The business of the information service and the Voice of America is to set off the United States favorably and to oppose Communism, Marxism, Stalinism, and the like pursued by Soviet Russia. This involves not only a technical knowledge of psychology, war fare but a profound knowledge of what the Russians are telling the world and what the meaning of Communism is, particularly concerning the doctrines of Marx, Lenin-Stalin, which influence about 800,000,000 people, with the philosophy of Americanism, which is combating the Russian influence with the blood of American sons and the earnings of American taxpayers.

Does W. Bradley Connors, who is in charge of policy, know anything about all this? Mark his words.

"The chairman: Mr. Connors, how much of an authority are you on the Communist movement?"

"Mr. Connors: Am not."

"The chairman: You are not an authority. Have you ever read any of the works of Marx or Lenin, Engels?"

"Mr. Connors: No, sir."

"The chairman: Any of the works of Stalin?"

"Mr. Connors: No, sir."

"The chairman: Have you ever studied a history of the Communist movement, their methods of operation?"

"Mr. Connors: I have never studied them."

"The chairman: In other words, as far as you are concerned, your mind is pretty much a blank as far as the workings of the Communist Party is concerned?"

In a word, here is a man who has personally witnessed the Communist Revolution in China, who has advised General George Marshall when the latter was negotiating a truce between Chinese Communists and Chinese Nationalists, who control the American information services on the subject and yet who has admittedly never shown sufficient curiosity to find out what it is all about.

Connors' defense is that he depends on research and intelligence.

"The chairman: The McCarthy asked you to tell me for the time being what your responsibilities are."

That question ought to be answered not by Connors but by General George Marshall and by Dean Acheson, who pushed this man into high responsibility for which he himself stated that he had no preparation. This is typical of the kind of men employed, the justification usually being that they are the best available.

Ex-Officers Face Assault Charges

STUTTGART (AP) — Two ex-officers are charged with a s ault with intent to kill in the reported beating of a Negro youth here last week.

Prosecutor J. B. Reed said he filed the charges against B. L. Taylor and Ellis Cheshire this weekend following an investigation of the incident by Stuttgart Chief of Police Buddy Stringer.

The probe followed a Memphis motorist's report of being stopped on the highway Feb. 22 by a man in police uniform waving a gun. She said a young Negro, identified by Stringer as Leroy Phillips, 18, was standing beside the road and that he apparently had been beaten about the head.

Cheshire was discharged as Stuttgart night patrolman that afternoon. Taylor previously served on the force.

It is wise to have a policy director, a man who says, "I have never studied the works on any of the authorities of Communism. I have never studied the Communist movement. I have never studied to determine how they work, how they infiltrate? Do you think it is wise to have a man with that complete lack of knowledge by his own admission directing the policy of a multimillion dollar program that is designed to fight Communism?"

Baseball Clubs Down to Business

By TIP WATSON
AP Sports Writer

Some baseball teams you never heard of, the last of the winter crop of holdouts and the ever-present pennant predictions were in the news today as the 16 major league baseball clubs got down to some serious spring training for the coming season.

With only a few days to test the unseasoned rookies and work on the veterans' wastelands, most of the managers put their players through strenuous drills yesterday. They are mindful of the fact that the so-called Grapefruit League games get under way this Saturday.

Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Cincinnati Reds wasted no time informing his players he wants them to "win 'em all."

"If the guys don't hustle to try and win the exhibition games down here, how can you expect them to do it when the regular season opens," the blunt-spoken manager commented.

And Charlie Grimm, another veteran manager, lined up what figures to be his Boston Braves, regular infield of Joe Adcock, Jack Dittmer, Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews for an infield drill.

The Sniders, Thomsons and Johnsons won the only "major league" games played yesterday.

You never heard of those names? The Sniders are named for Duke, the Brooklyn outfielder who hit a home run to give his namesakes a 2-1 victory over the Roy Campanella in an intracamp game, John Podres, Brooklyn's 1932 spring sensation, turned up again with a fine three-inning performance.

A two-run homer by Catcher Sal Evans provided the winning runs for Bobby Thomsons, who edged the White Sox, 7-6, in a New York Giants' intrasquad game.

Billy Johnson, St. Louis Cardinal third baseman, guided his team to a 4-1 victory over the Red Schoendienst.

An optimistic visitor to the Cardinal camp was former Owner Satchel, who made the trip to St. Petersburg, Fla., to say so long to his old players before turning the franchise over to the new owners.

"I will be greatly surprised if the Cardinals do not win the pennant," he commented. "Peddy Stanky was a good manager last year and he will be better this year."

Satchel will start serving a prison sentence in May for income tax irregularities.

Most prominent of the holdouts was Ralph Kiner, home run slugger of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who finds himself involved in a long distance argument with Branch Rickey, the club's general manager.

About the only thing that Kiner, at his Palm Springs, Calif., home, and Rickey, in the Pirates' Havana training camp, agree on is that Ralph surely is a holdout.

Kiner said he went a letter accepting terms Rickey offered Feb. 13, but Rickey said he had not yet received the letter. The general manager also came up with a three-point program covering the situation:

1. He recognizes no agreement with Kiner.

2. There are no deals pending to trade Kiner.

3. New contract negotiations must start from the beginning.

Less vocal were the Cleveland Indians' holdouts, Pitcher Early Wynn and Outfielder Larry Doby. The Indians, in fact, haven't heard from the pair in some time.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The most recent and important job of coaching being done in any baseball camp this spring has been allotted to Tony Cuccinello of the Cleveland Indians staff. The American League pennant could well ride on the little coach's success or failure.

All Tony has been asked to do is to teach Ray Boone how to play shortstop properly and in so doing provide the game's greatest pitching staff with the sort of support it needs to beat out the Yankees instead of finishing second.

Tony has thrown himself into the task with much energy and enthusiasm and believes he will succeed, though he concedes it is quite a challenge to teach some of the simplest fundamentals of fielding to an established big leaguer who is starting his fifth full season with the Indians.

"The strange thing is," he said, "that it has taken this long to discover the reason the boy has been erratic on ground balls and has failed to improve in starting the double play. We would have won the pennant the past two years with just a little better shortstop."

"What we know now is that Boone has a strange little habit of fluttering his hands just before a ground ball reaches him, and at the same time lifting his head a trifle. The result has been that too many balls either have gone under his glove or have been booted just enough for us to miss an important double play."

"My job is to make him get his hands right down on the ground and keep them there, and at the same time get his head down as low as he can, looking right at the ball. Even if the ball takes a bad hop, I'm telling him, it's better to get hit on top of the head than in the face."

"I never saw a player work harder. I'm knocking balls at him until I'm worn out, and then he's staying out there for an hour or two some days working on it with other players. I believe he's going to master it, and if he does our biggest problem is over."

Although George Strickland did a fine job of shortstopping for the Indians in their thrilling stretch drive after the Yankees last autumn, Manager Al Lopez would like to see Boone come back and take over the post on a regular basis because he potentially is a far better hitter than Strickland.

Three seasons ago he hit for a .301 average, but the past two years has been as dismal at the plate as in the field.

Another Try at Cherry's Bills Planned

By RAY STEPHENS

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The Arkansas General Assembly rocked the boat for the first time on Gov. Francis Cherry's legislative program last week, but administration leaders in the Senate will try again to save one bill.

Three administration proposals were defeated—two in the Senate and one in the House—Wednesday. The legislators voted to grant no further consideration to two of the measures, but Sen. J. Lee Bearden of Leachville served notice that the third one would be called up again. Unless Bearden, an administration wheelerhorse, gets move time he'll have to end the bill up when the Assembly ends its weekend recess this afternoon.

This measure, which lost by only one vote, would set out new condemnation procedures for the Highway Commission in getting road rights-of-way.

Among other things, the senators objected to provisions that would (1) force the counties to pay half the cost of any condemned land, without any chance of getting part of the money back; (2) allow the Commission to condemn land for future as well as present use; (3) condemn personal and real property; and (4) exchange one plot of condemned property for another.

The first administration bill to meet defeat in the 7-week session fell before the rural bloc. It would have stripped the Legislature of its sole power to remove roads from the state highway system and vested the authority in the Highway Commission.

Sen. Guy H. Jones of Conway led opposition to the bill, and started the floor fight by attempting to amend it to exempt his four counties.

"My people have served notice on me that I'd better not go home if this bill is passed," said Jones.

Under present law, both the Legislature and the Commission can add roads to the system, but only the Legislature can take them off.

The House defeated the third administration bill. It would have required a recipient of aid to give State Welfare Department to give the state a lien on all his or her property, including a homestead. The bill got only 18 votes, while 67 representatives voted against it.

A total of 1,040 bills have been introduced in the first seven weeks of the session, which has only one week more to go.
